MOVIE STORY DUE NEXT MONTH

It's going to be an exciting event—the Gold Key issue of GOODBYE, MR. CHIPS, based on the M-G-M motion picture. We predict the movie will be around for years to come, and the comic will become a collector's item. It's the very human story of a shy schoolmaster and his vivacious wife, set against the colorful background of a tradition-bound British school.

Meet Mr. Chips—you'll be glad you did.

THE GROTESQUE ONE

That's what Francois was called, an object of ridicule. His only friends were the stone gargoyles that looked out from the cathedral onto the town square. But when Francois had to bid his friends farewell, a monstrous terror gripped the town. One of the great thrillers in next month's BORIS KARLOFF, TALES OF MYSTERY.

"What are you reading, Yakky?" Chopper asked his little friend.

"A book about judo," Yakky explained. "Someday I may have to protect myself from Fibber Fox when you're not around to help."

"That's right! In fact, you should take lessons. It's much easier to learn when a teacher shows you exactly what to do."

Yakky thought Chopper's idea was a good one, so he set off for town to enroll in a judo class. Someone else thought it was a good idea, too...Fibber Fox! He had been in the bushes hiding and overheard Yakky's plan. He took a shortcut through the woods, stopping at his cave to get a disguise.

A short time later, Yakky was walking down the path to town when he came upon a sign reading, "FREE JUDO LESSONS." An arrow on the sign pointed to a cave, and Yakky flew over and yelled inside that he'd like some lessons. The teacher came out...it was Fibber Fox with a fake mustache and beard, and Yakky did not recognize him.

"I'd like to take some judo lessons from you," Yakky explained. "I want to be able to protect myself from a nasty old fox."

"It's a good thing you came to me," old Fibber chuckled. "I know exactly how a fox goes about catching a duck. We'll pretend that you're a duck and I'm a fox...it shouldn't be too hard. Heh, heh...now what would you do if I came at you like this?"

Fibber suddenly leaped for Yakky, shouting, "Aha! After all these years of chasing I've finally got you cornered!"

"You're a good actor," said Yakky, avoiding his teacher. "You act just like a fox! But if you were really that mean Fibber, this is what I would do."

Saying this, Yakky grabbed Fibber by the ankles, upending the nasty old fox with a loud thud. Fibber was rather surprised.

"You really fell for that one," Yakky chuckled. "I learned that trick from a judo book I read yesterday."

"That was just luck. I'll get you this time," Fibber growled, rushing toward Yakky again. Yakky didn't move until Fibber dove to pounce on him. Then Yakky ducked and poor Fibber went sailing over the little duck's head, right into a stout tree trunk.

"I learned that from the book, too," smiled Yakky, helping his teacher up.

"You read too much," Fibber snarled. "But I'll get you for sure this time."

Fibber slowly stalked toward Yakky, holding his hands out to grab the duck.

"If you were a real fox, I'd get away like this," Yakky said as he grabbed Fibber by the wrist and threw him over his shoulder onto the hard ground. "That's in the book."

"I know, I know...you learned it from reading," Fibber groaned as he lay on the rocky ground. "I must get myself a copy of that book. Lesson is over for today."

"Thank you, sir," Yakky said as he flew off. "It was lots of fun and you're a good teacher. But I'll need more training. I know if I met up with a real fox I'd never be able to beat him with my judo holds."

"Bah!" moaned the fractured Fibber. "Yakky still doesn't know I'm the teacher. From now on, I'll stick to gentler sports. This judo is rough on my health. (Groan!)"

The next day Yakky came back for another lesson, but the teacher didn't show up! Yakky couldn't figure out why...but we know the answer, don't we? Fibber's a coward!
